RG104 E-1 Box 149
RG104 E-1 Box 149 Part 2

Treasury Department,

BUREAU OF THE MINT,

Washington, D. C., December 24 1887

Sir:

Please inform me whether the proposal of Joseph Wharton to furnish Nickel Blanks for five-cent pieces, which was accepted by you and approved at this Bureau November 29, contained a provision for a supplementary supply up to 250,000 pounds, or whether that provision of the contract was supplemental to the original pro--posal.

Mr. Wharton dwells upon this point as one of difference com--pared with the action of this Bureau in the matter of his pro--posal to furnish one-cent blanks. Inasmuch as the original proposal contained the provision for a supplemental supply, the acceptance of that proposal, though not specific as to this sup--plemental supply, involved the acceptance of this part as well as the whole of the proposal.

Please send a copy of the nickel contract as originally re--ceived, and of any supplementary proposal, if separate.

Very respectfully,

Jas P. Windale

Director of the Mint.

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,
Superintendent U.S. Mint,
Philadelphia.

NARA RG104, Entry 1, Box 149

Treasury Department,
Bureau of the Mint,
Washington, D.C.,
December 24, 1887

Sir:

Please inform me whether the proposal of Joseph Wharton to furnish Nickel Blanks for five-cent pieces, which was accepted by you and approved at this Bureau November 29, contained a provision for a supplementary supply up to 250,000 pounds, or whether that provision of the contract was supplemental to the original proposal.

Mr. Wharton dwells upon this point as one of difference compared with the action of this Bureau in the matter of his proposal to furnish one-cent blanks. Inasmuch as the original proposal contained the provision for a supplemental supply, the acceptance of that proposal, though not specific as to this supplemental supply, involved the acceptance of this part as well as the whole of the proposal.

Please send a copy of the nickel contract as originally received and of any supplementary proposal, if separate.

Very respectfully,
James P. Kimball
Director of the Mint.

Hon. Daniel M. Fox,
Superintendent U.S. Mint,
Philadelphia.